Description

Description A carved wooden sculpture depicting the Corpus Domini, standing as an exemplary manifestation of cultural syncretism in which the plastic rendering faithfully mirrors the hallmarks of the European rustic Romanesque style. The figure is sculpted in a rigidly frontal pose, with horizontally outstretched arms seamlessly joined to the main torso through a traditional mortise-and-tenon system, historically secured with wooden dowels. Dimensions HxLxD 25in x 23,43in x 3,35in Provenance Private Collection Conditions In good overall condition. Some losses.
