Description

B10 floor lamp designed by René-Jean Caillette and produced by Disderot around 1970. Crafted from cream-white lacquered metal, it consists of an openwork cylindrical shaft resting on a tulip-shaped base. Seven light bulbs arranged vertically inside the structure remain visible through the openings and diffuse light throughout the entire height. The B10 was produced in various sizes; this example is the 105-cm-tall, seven-light version. Manufacturer: Disderot, France, circa 1970. Bibliography: Disderot sales catalog, 1970, model B10.
