Description

With its twisting form and rich patina, this rosewood root console draws upon the Chinese tradition of appreciating natural aesthetics. By working with a shape already created by nature, the artisan simply enhances a natural movement, a knot, or a line. The result is stunning. Please note that, due to the nature of the material, this root piece is very heavy; a custom delivery quote will be required based on the destination country, city, and the floor to which the console must be carried.
