Description

A splendid and authentic pair of antique candlesticks in the Dutch style known as "Heemskerk", characteristic of the High Period (17th century). These collector's pieces stand out for their high-quality craftsmanship, timeless design, and stunning presence. Craftsmanship details: Delicately turned shaft with molded decorations, interrupted at its center by a wide bobèche (intermediate disc) typical of Flemish and Dutch production from this period. Stability and authenticity: The flared, hollow circular base is traditionally weighted with original lead beneath the bottom. This period technique ensures excellent stability and confirms the density as well as the fine craftsmanship of the metal (thick copper alloy, bronze, or brass). Condition: Very good condition for items
