Description

A remarkable pair of Art Nouveau vases made of regule with polychrome patinas, signed L. Moreau. This elegant pair features two allegorical figures in high relief: a male figure holding a flowering branch and a female figure draped in a veil billowing in the wind. The compositions unfold harmoniously around the bodies of the vases, set against a floral and botanical backdrop characteristic of the Art Nouveau movement. The richness of the modeling, the rendering of the hair, the movement of the drapery, and the finesse of the sculpture all attest to the quality of this work. The various patinas--gold, medal brown, and antique green--add depth and dimension to the ensemble. A high-quality decorative work from the early 20th century, this pair perfectly illustrates the naturalistic and poetic aesthetic of
