Description

A beautiful oil on canvas by Grigori Andreyevich Goncharov, 1913-2001. This painting depicts a Soviet rally dated 1950 and is signed on both the front and back of the canvas. It is a significant crowd scene depicting a popular gathering in a Soviet setting, with a large and lively crowd in the foreground. Meanwhile, a political figure or orator stands on a podium decorated with flags and banners. The artist powerfully captures the atmosphere of this event through a highly dynamic composition and a palette of browns, reds, and grays. The presence of numerous figures, flags, and the architecture in the background gives the work a genuine historical and documentary dimension characteristic of Soviet genre and history painting from the mid-20th century. Beautifully executed!
