Description

This bowl, dating from the late 19th or early 20th century, is crafted in the Empire style. It elegantly combines deep green glazed ceramic with gilded bronze (ormolu). Mounting and decoration: The bowl is adorned with a finely chiseled bronze mount, characteristic of the Empire tradition, featuring symmetrical griffins framing a central element, graceful acanthus scrolls, and delicate bead friezes highlighting the curved upper rim and the base. Base: The piece rests on an elegant bronze pedestal featuring four finely crafted lion's-paw feet, lending the object a majestic and regal appearance. Condition: Excellent condition for an antique piece, with a beautiful, authentic bronze patina and a deep luster on the ceramic.
