Description

A large and spectacular silver-plated bronze bowl, crafted in Madrid by the renowned Meneses workshop, founded in 1840 by Leoncio Meneses. It rests on a richly ornamented base featuring a relief design centered around rearing horses framing two putti in lively poses. The body, entirely adorned with scrolls, volutes, foliage, shells, and rocaille motifs, displays a design that attests to remarkable skill in sculpture and engraving. The center is adorned with a large ornamental motif surmounted by a cartouche, surrounded by floral and plant motifs. Given its dimensions, its exceptional weight of 15.7 kg, and the opulence of its decoration, this piece stands as a remarkable testament to the prestigious works of the Meneses workshop, one of the most renowned Spanish goldsmiths of its
