Description

A refined circular miniature painting depicting a young officer in a red uniform with a gold epaulette, lace jabot, and powdered wig; attributable to the late 18th century (Louis XVI / Directory period).

The miniature is set within a beautiful and rare lozenge-shaped frame, finely crafted in gilt metal filigree and embellished with small pearls at the corners, featuring a decorative top piece with a suspension loop and a delightful lower pendant. The back retains its original burgundy fabric/leather lining, bearing a gilded monogram.

Period: Late 18th / early 19th century

Frame dimensions: 10 cm x 10 cm
