Description

This pendant light is composed of a large smoked glass globe with amber reflections, capped with brass and traversed by a ringed central rod that carries, at its heart, a cluster of four faux-candle lights arranged crosswise on circular bobèches. The cylindrical ceiling rose cover and the chain complete the mount. This type of smoked glass globe pendant, where the light source reveals itself in transparency through the amber tint of the globe, is emblematic of 1970s lighting, between the classical heritage of candle lights and the modernity of the sphere, in the spirit of the European productions of the period. Condition report: Good overall condition. Smoked glass globe with no visible damage, brass with a gilded patina. Wiring be checked . A warm and enveloping pendant light, perfect above an
