Description

A rare and elegant pair of castle curtains dating from the Second Empire period, crafted from a sumptuous blend of silk, linen, and metallic threads, featuring a lavish floral design inspired by the grand 19th-century upholstery fabrics. The luminous gold background is embellished with a woven design of flowers, foliage, and stylized pomegranates in shades of brown, caramel, dusty pink, and garnet red. The quality of the weave, the richness of the patterns, and the subtle shimmer of the metallic threads give this set a remarkable decorative presence. This pair is part of a set of four identical pairs originally from a prestigious residence. The other pairs are for sale on this website. The curtains are fully lined and retain a few original hanging rings at the top. They come with their superb original trimmings,
