Description

Chinese bench made of carved wood with mother-of-pearl inlays - 20th century A substantial and highly decorative Chinese bench made of carved and openwork exotic wood. The spectacular backrest is entirely adorned with scrollwork, foliage, and carved floral motifs, arranged around three medallions. The large central panel, framed by two oval medallions, features a delicate floral decoration inlaid with mother-of-pearl, depicting bouquets of flowers. The upper part of the backrest features a richly openwork crest with flowing lines. The carved armrests harmoniously extend the decoration. The wide seat consists of a framed solid wood panel, while the apron is embellished with a floral design carved in slight relief. The piece rests on four curved legs and boasts a
