Description

A snuffbox carved from walnut in the shape of a shoe, a folk art piece from the first half of the 19th century. The object features rich engraved and carved decoration consisting of geometric friezes, rosettes, and stylized motifs that highlight the different parts of the shoe. The rear lid, which is particularly intricately crafted, pivots to reveal the compartment for tobacco. The piece is made entirely of walnut and features a beautiful, warm, and nuanced patina that has developed over time. The construction, tool marks, and signs of wear are characteristic of traditional artisanal craftsmanship. A particularly decorative curiosity, reflecting the taste for figurative snuffboxes and the craftsmanship of 19th-century folk artists. In good overall condition, with wear and small, age-appropriate marks consistent with its age and
