Description

Important 70-piece dinner service by Versace for Rosenthal, in the Barocco pattern, on the "Ikarus" form designed by German artist Paul Wunderlich. Created in 1994, the Barocco pattern belongs to the early major collaborations between Versace and Rosenthal. It combines a particularly rich ornamental vocabulary -- scrolls, volutes, acanthus leaves, vegetal motifs and geometric borders -- with a distinctive palette of black, white, amber yellow and gold. The Ikarus form, designed by Paul Wunderlich in the early 1990s, is distinguished by its sculptural lines and by its serving pieces featuring highly architectural handles and finials, sometimes developed in the form of wings. This historic version of the Barocco pattern on the Ikarus form is no longer offered in the current
