Description

A Luigi Filippo-style walnut cabinet, made in France in the second quarter of the 19th century, featuring an elegant glass front door that allows for the stylish display of objects. Inside, three shelves--adjustable in height via a rack system--offer flexibility in organizing the space. Functionality is further enhanced by a spacious drawer below and an additional drawer concealed within the base molding. The jar-shaped feet provide stability and a touch of sophistication, while the oak interior completes the piece with a contrast of high-quality materials. An ideal vintage piece to enrich classic interiors with an authentic historical touch. Product condition: Due to its age and wear, this product requires restoration and refinishing. We strive to present the actual condition of the piece as fully as
