Description

A significant pair of castle curtains made of woven jacquard fabric, dating from the late 19th century, circa 1880-1900. These remarkable curtains feature an elegant Neo-Renaissance design composed of stylized palmettes and floral motifs set against a deep blue background. The design, created using the Jacquard weaving technique rather than printing, offers a subtle texture and great decorative richness, characteristic of high-quality upholstery fabrics produced in the second half of the 19th century. The pair retains its original hanging system, consisting of small rings connected by fabric ties, attesting to its original use in a prestigious residence. Given its extraordinary dimensions, this pair was intended to frame large openings in castles, private mansions, or grand
