Description

An Art Deco-era pedestal table with a distinctly modernist influence. This piece stands out for its unique and powerful architectural geometric design, typical of the 1930s. It rests on a complex, sculptural central base composed of beveled panels and interlocking rectangular elements crafted from solid walnut. The recessed, stepped base accentuates the visual stability of the piece. The structure supports a wide rectangular top with beveled edges. The top is topped by its original glass panel, in perfect condition, which lightens the silhouette and protects the wood. The mahogany has a magnificent, warm, and deep patina.
