Description

This pair of large sculpted heads depicting Roman emperors, created in Italy in the 1950s, is cast in green-patinated bronze, with each head resting on an imposing solid marble base. Inspired by the grand sculpted portraits of Imperial Rome, these heads are modeled with bold classical features and a strong architectural presence. The rich texture of the bronze features an attractive green patina, highlighting the modeling of the faces, hair, and individual details. Each bronze is set atop a solid marble base, creating an elegant contrast between the deep green tones of the patinated metal and the natural veining and polished surface of the stone. Standing approximately 70 cm tall, these sculptures are imposing and particularly striking when displayed together. Their bold neoclassical character makes
