Description

Original drawing signed "Le Renégat" - Orientalist Horseman An original drawing signed in his own hand depicting an Oriental horseman dressed in a lavish traditional costume, riding a galloping horse. Created in ink and gouache on paper, this composition--with its vivid, contrasting colors--reflects Roubille's distinctive decorative and synthetic style. The graphic treatment of the figure and the black outlines evokes the aesthetic of early 20th-century Parisian posters and illustrations. The drawing bears the handwritten title "Le Renégat" in the lower left corner, as well as an autographed dedication in the lower right corner addressed to "his old friend." A beautiful Orientalist work in a style reminiscent of illustrations from cabarets, theaters, and illustrated magazines of the Belle
