Description

English mahogany folding table - 19th century
Elegant English mahogany folding table, 19th century. A very attractive piece with a particularly light and refined design. The base is adorned with openwork panels featuring crossbars, joined by a low crossbar. Some of the legs are fitted with small antique casters. Its ingenious folding mechanism allows it to remain extremely narrow when closed--just 20 cm deep--and then unfold to provide a 76.5 cm tabletop. The mahogany features a beautiful warm color and striking grain, which is particularly visible on the tabletop. This table is both decorative and highly practical thanks to its compact size when folded. Origin: England Period: 19th century Wood: mahogany Dimensions: height 64 cm - width 61 cm - depth when closed 20 cm -
