A refined pair of Imari porcelain vases with globular bodies and long necks, decorated with vivid iron-red enamels on a karakusa ground, enriched with circular reserves depicting birds and the flowers of the four seasons, set within an abundant floral decoration. Each vase is encircled by an imposing white dragon modeled in high relief, sinuously winding around the body and neck. Hichozan mark under the base. Period: Meiji late 19th century. Dimensions: 43 x 28 cm. Condition report: Very good condition, with minor wear. The cracks along the dragons are not restorations but original firing flaws. They are more evident along the tails, where the modeled elements are thinner.
