Period : 20th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Oak

Description

A highly decorative oak pedestal dating from around 1900, notable for its architectural proportions and elegant gilded relief decoration. Crafted from solid oak, this pedestal combines the warmth and pronounced grain of the wood with finely executed gilded ornamental reliefs, creating an alluring contrast between the natural material and the gilded decorative elements. Its slender proportions give the piece a strong architectural presence while providing a raised display surface ideal for a sculpture, a bust, a vase, an urn, or any other valuable decorative object. Its geometric structure and stylized ornamentation foreshadow the decorative vocabulary later associated with Art Deco, while retaining the quality of craftsmanship and sturdiness characteristic of turn-of-the-century
