Trained at the Liège Academy, she began her career in an abstract style. She honed her skills in Italy during the 1960s. Upon her return to Belgium, her style became more figurative while remaining on the edge of abstraction, with paintings inspired by the human figure, the movement of bodies and dance, nature and trees, as well as the world of the circus. She taught drawing and painting in Liège. The artist is listed in Arto and Piron (Dictionaries of Belgian Painters). Listed on Artprice, Artnet, etc...This canvas, securely stretched on its original
