Description

An important original 17th-century Venetian chest of drawers, crafted from walnut wood and featuring four large drawers with paneled, which highlight the wood's rich grain and natural color variations. The solid structure, with its imposing proportions, features drawers framed by moldings and retains the original period handles, along with the characteristic lock plates. The projecting top and the molded base complete the piece's elegant design. The piece is in condition consistent with its age and requires conservative restoration aimed at preserving its original elements and enhancing its structure, veneer, and patina.
