Description

A charming Louis XIII-style stool from France, dating to around 1840, crafted in solid walnut with beautifully turned legs and stretchers. The seat is upholstered in a richly woven floral tapestry fabric in shades of green and gold, secured with a border of brass nailhead trim. The stool's robust yet elegant silhouette reflects the Baroque influence of the Louis XIII period, characterized by its rhythmic turning and balanced proportions. The tapestry upholstery adds warmth and texture, making this piece both decorative and functional; ideal as a side seat, footstool, or accent piece in refined interiors. This stool embodies the timeless craftsmanship and decorative richness of 19th-century French furniture, blending historical character with textile artistry.
