Description

Paul Millet and V. Yung (Sèvres) - Art Nouveau gourd-shaped vase in glazed porcelain with orchids
Gourd-shaped vase with flared shoulders and a truncated conical neck, made of glazed and gilded porcelain, Art Nouveau period (circa 1900-1910) The vase features orchids on a gilded background in a Japanese-inspired style
Marked with the green Sèvres workshop stamp on the base, numbered, and signed V. Yung in the design
The son of ceramist Félix Millet, Paul Millet took over the family workshop in Sèvres at the end of the 19th century. He collaborated with decorative artists such as V. Yung, creating pieces that won awards at the Salons and major world's fairs for the purity of their botanical motifs and the mastery of their raised glazes. Note a fine hairline crack at the rim (see
