Description

A handsome French coffee table from around 1915, crafted in solid dark oak with a rich, aged patina. The design features a rectangular plank top supported by two spiral-turned columns resting on trestle bases joined by a sturdy stretcher. The bold, sculptural legs evoke the Baroque revival style popular in early 20th-century French interiors, while the simplicity of the top lends a rustic balance. The craftsmanship highlights the natural grain and depth of the oak, making this piece both decorative and functional. This table embodies the timeless solidity and artisanal character of French provincial furniture; a perfect accent for interiors blending heritage and warmth.
