Description

A rare set of four polychrome ceramic bowls made in Ferrara, dating from the 15th century. Slightly different in shape and size, the four bowls feature a rich decorative repertoire consisting of plant, geometric, and figurative motifs, predominantly in shades of green, brown, and ochre. In terms of style and decoration, they belong to the tradition of engobed, sgraffito, and glazed ceramics that flourished in Ferrara during the 15th century. Preserved as a set, they offer an interesting insight into 15th-century Ferrara ceramic production and the ornamental variety that characterized the pottery of that era.
