Description

An elegant late 19th-century French writing desk, crafted from fine solid oak. The piece features two front drawers with original knobs and a leather-covered top, framed by refined wooden molding. The turned legs end in original casters, a functional and decorative detail typical of French furniture of the period. Its balanced proportions and understated elegance make it a versatile piece, ideal both as a writing desk and as a center table for a study or a classic living room. A piece of great charm, it fits perfectly into traditional or eclectic interiors, bearing witness to the quality of late 19th-century French craftsmanship.
