Description

? HISTORY & DESIGNExecutive office chair, designed by Charles Pollock for Knoll International. Designed in the 1960s, this modernist chair is based on a major technical innovation: the use of a peripheral band of extruded, chrome-plated aluminum that ensures the shell's rigidity while encasing the upholstery. This example is presented in its armless configuration, highlighting the purity of the original design. It rests on a five-star swivel base with casters, meeting the mobility requirements of modern workspaces.?
