Description

A stunning convertible brooch featuring a large ribbon bow, crafted in platinum and 18-karat yellow gold and entirely set with diamonds. The design, with a very airy feel, consists of long ribbons forming loops and knotted sections. The openwork of the setting lends the piece a sense of lightness despite its substantial size. The brooch retains its mechanism for transforming it into a hair ornament, along with its mounting accessories: an 18-karat gold brooch clasp and safety chain, a metal pin, and a small screwdriver. It is presented in its original case, monogrammed "B. Noury, Fabricant, 64 rue Greneta, Paris". French work, circa 1890-1900, attributed to the House of B. Noury. In very fine overall condition. Numbered piece. The Noury House was one of the Parisian jewelry houses
