Description

An elegant Belgian Art Deco umbrella stand from the 1920s, featuring a geometric openwork design in black-painted metal with a brass-toned rim. The structure combines twisted vertical rods and interlocking circular motifs, creating a balanced interplay of line and form typical of early modernist design. The stand rests on a hexagonal base fitted with a metal drip tray, showing a naturally aged patina that complements its architectural silhouette. Its restrained geometry and subtle contrast between black and brass make it a refined accent for entryways or hall interiors. A timeless example of Belgian Art Deco craftsmanship, merging functionality and sculptural elegance. Two matching umbrella stands are available.
