Description

An elegant hanging oil lamp based on an original design by Sergei Ivanovich Vashkov, a leading figure in Moscow modernism and a key reformer of ecclesiastical art in the early 20th century. The composition is distinguished by its masterful architecture and a subtle balance between structural precision and decorative richness. A dome-shaped crown topped by a cross surmounts a system of chains supporting a circular ring with a central basin of deep blue glass. The lower section is adorned with suspended chains, green glass beads, and a chi-rho symbol, all referencing early Christian symbolism. The piece as a whole illustrates Vashkov's characteristic synthesis of Byzantine tradition, the heritage of ancient Russia, and Art Nouveau aesthetics. Materials: Brass, blue glass, green glass beads. Dimensions:
