Description

"27 Days of Love" Rug " Rug - Jean-Charles de Castelbajac, circa 1990 Original work by Jean-Charles de Castelbajac, "27 Days of Love", created circa 1990. This textile creation perfectly illustrates the vibrant, colorful, and poetic world of Jean-Charles de Castelbajac, a French designer who loves to blend fashion, contemporary art, graphic design, and design. The rug takes the form of a large checkerboard composed of multicolored squares, each featuring a different color, shade, or contrast. At the heart of this highly graphic composition are numerous black letters, scattered throughout the various squares and forming fragments of words such as "AMOUR," "ESPOIR," "COEUR," "REGARD", thus transforming the rug into a true visual poem. The artist's signature is also integrated directly into the composition. This construction through language and color is characteristic of the work, described as a true dialogue between art, design, and fashion. Crafted from thick, dense wool, this rug has a particularly luxurious texture and a remarkable feel. It is manufactured in Thailand, using the prestigious Tai Ping wool, renowned for the excellence of its fibers and the quality of its textile products. With its bold graphic design, visual language, and vibrant color palette, " 27 Days of Love" is fully in keeping with 1990s design and constitutes a particularly original decorative piece, straddling the line between rug, work of art, and contemporary creation. Size : 240x180 cm Condition : Good overall condition. There are slight stains in some sections, visible in the photographs, as well as wear on the wool due to age, reflecting its history and use. Stains on the back of the rug.*Video available upon requestMY COMPLETE GALLERY
