Description

A multi-lobed plate (with a scalloped edge) made of Imari porcelain (Japan), dating from the late 19th century (Meiji period). The interior decoration, hand-painted in cobalt blue underglaze, iron red, and accented with gold, features a rich traditional iconographic composition: In the center: A large white circular medallion adorned with a woven floral basket (Hanakago) from which peonies and chrysanthemums spill out. On the wing and the rim: An alternating pattern of large cloud-shaped cartouches. They depict delicate Japanese cranes in flight (symbols of longevity) as well as leaping hares or rabbits amid stylized foliage. The reverse side of the plate features a minimalist design of flowering twigs painted in cobalt blue, typical of these pieces. Diameter 21.5 cm The piece is in
