Description

Stylized Wrought Iron Bust Mannequin - Vintage Decor & Charming Jewelry Holder A stunning anthropomorphic wrought iron bust mannequin from the 1970s, a decorative piece with a poetic, ethereal, and decidedly elegant silhouette. Combining the charm of romantic style with wirework design, this piece of artisanal craftsmanship traces the contours of a feminine silhouette crowned with infinite grace. Ideal for a bedroom, a walk-in closet, a ready-to-wear boutique, or even to adorn a corner of the garden or a sunroom. Charming Design & Details: A Sculptural Silhouette: The twisted metalwork delicately traces the outline of a face, a wide-brimmed hat adorned with arabesques, as well as a slender torso and hips. Integrated Jewelry Elements: The mannequin is adorned with amber-tinted glass cabochons (citrine effect) that simulate a choker necklace and a jeweled belt. These details beautifully catch the light.

Functional arabesques: The metal scrolls extending from the hat and the bust are not merely decorative: they serve as coat hooks and jewelry holders--ideal for hanging necklaces, long necklaces, scarves, or lightweight hats.

Technical Specifications:

Material: Entire structure made of sturdy wrought iron, finished with a slightly golden or bronze-colored paint or patina that gives it a timeless look.

Stability: Rests on a wide, radiating circular metal base, ensuring excellent stability on the ground despite the structure's visual lightness.

Versatile Use: Treated for indoor use, it can also be placed in a sheltered outdoor area (patio, sunroom) to serve as a unique trellis for a climbing plant.

Condition: Very good overall condition. The structure is perfectly stable, straight, and sound. All the glass cabochons are present and intact. The patina shows slight natural wear, which enhances its authenticity and its "chic flea market" charm.

Whether you use it to organize your everyday accessories or simply as a distinctive sculpture, this mannequin will instantly add a touch of poetry and refinement to your space.
