

Still Life With A Bouquet Of Flowers. Rose J. Leigh (1844-1920). Ireland

2 000 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Oil painting

Width : 66

Height : 72

Depth : 10

Description

An elegant floral still life by Irish artist Rose J. Leigh (1844-1920), depicting a sumptuous bouquet of garden flowers, painted in the tradition of late 19th-century European academic painting. The composition is based on a subtle harmony between the natural beauty of the subject and a refined decorative sense of form, characteristic of Victorian artistic culture. With great sensitivity, the artist conveys the richness of natural forms, the diversity of textures, and the delicate nuances of the petals, creating an impression of freshness and vivid presence. The soft modeling of the forms, the subtle transitions between light and shadow, and the balanced color palette highlight the artist's mastery of the classical genre of floral still life. The work reflects the characteristic interest of 19th-century

Dealer

Maison Antiquon

Fine Art & Antiques

Mobile : +33 6 30 17 47 17

Rue de France 48

Nice 06000

European painting in the natural world, where flowers become not only a subject of artistic representation but also a symbol of beauty, harmony, and the fleeting nature of time. The painting is presented in a frame. Signature: Artist's signature in the lower left corner: J. LEIGH. Dimensions: Painting: 69 × 58 cm. Frame: 72 × 66 cm. Medium: Oil on canvas. Condition: Good collector's condition considering the age of the work.