230 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Silk

Description

A beautiful cushion made from a superb 19th-century antique damask silk fabric with a particularly elegant floral design. The fabric features a magnificent design of flowers, foliage, and stylized plant motifs, arranged in a symmetrical pattern punctuated by fine vertical stripes. The delicate shades of grayish blue, beige, and burnt sienna lend the piece a very soft and sophisticated harmony. The damask creates subtle plays of light depending on the angle, revealing the full richness of the weave and the quality of this beautiful antique fabric. The cushion is carefully crafted and is in excellent condition. The back is made of a plain, burnt-bread-colored fabric, which perfectly complements the damask pattern, and features a zipper that allows the cover to be easily
