Description

Neo-Baroque walnut sideboard, made in Italy in the late 19th century. The upper section features a central panel flanked by side doors, finely decorated with swirling leaf carvings and fruit motifs. The corners feature turned and carved columns, while the interior caryatids--which extend down to the base--rest on animal-shaped feet. The central section is embellished with carved panels and interior shelf supports featuring mask-like motifs, with plinth-style side columns that add an extra touch of elegance. The base consists of three drawers beneath the top and paneled doors, decorated with foliage, fruit, and drapery motifs, supported by carved double-shelf feet. This piece is a refined example of the Neo-Baroque style, ideal for spaces that call for a touch of history and artistic
