Description

17th-century Italian School Virgin and Child Asleep Oil on canvas. 76 × 65 cm. The Virgin is depicted holding the sleeping Infant Jesus close to her, in an intimate composition characteristic of 17th-century Italian devotional painting. Various examples attest to the prevalence of this composition in 17th-century Italian painting, some of which have been attributed to the Roman School, circa 1650. Another version, smaller in size (38.7 × 44.5 cm), attributed to an unknown artist, is held at Lady Margaret Hall, University of Oxford (inv. PCF10) and listed in Art UK. Condition: signs of wear. Canvas re-stretched and previously restored. Some wear, small losses, and signs of age remain, inherent to the work's age, without affecting its interpretation or the quality of its presentation. Dimensions: 76 × 65
