Description

19th-century oil on wood after Perugino - "The Family of the Virgin" A superb 19th-century oil on wood panel, painted after Perugino's famous composition (Pietro Vannucci). The original, housed at the Musée des Beaux-Arts in Marseille, depicts one of the major themes of the Italian Renaissance: The Family of the Virgin. The scene is centered on the seated Virgin Mary holding the Infant Jesus, surrounded by Saint Anne and members of the Holy Family, arranged in a semicircle on an architecturally designed platform. The background, punctuated by arches and steps, lends depth and balance, while the children seated on the steps add a lively and warm touch. Painted in oil on panel, the work features light skin tones, smooth drapery, and a harmonious palette of blues, reds, and golds, typical of 19th-century academic copies. The composition is luminous, clear, and decorative, faithful to the spirit of the Italian Renaissance. It is set in a 19th-century gilded wooden frame with broad moldings, adorned with acanthus leaves, a beaded frieze, and floral motifs in relief at the corners. The gilding, with a slight patina, casts warm highlights that emphasize the verticality and nobility of the scene. A cohesive, elegant piece ready to hang, ideal for a classic interior or a decorative collection. Dimensions:- Frame: 48 × 53 cm- Panel only: 31.8 × 37 cm Condition: very good. Please note a very slight chip along the edge of the frame; it is discreet and does not affect the overall appearance of the piece.
