Description

[AGRIPPA VON NETTESHEIM (Heinrich Cornelius)] - On the Greatness and Excellence of Women, Above Men. A work composed in Latin and translated into French with curious notes and the Life of Agrippa, by . H. C. Paris, published by François Babuty, 1713; in-12, 42 pp. with engravings + 125 pp. + table of contents, approval, and privilege, full speckled calf binding, spine decorated with 5 raised bands, marbled edges. Translated by Jean d'Arnaudin. First edition of this French translation of "De nobilitate & praecellentia foeminei sexus." One of the earliest feminist texts, Henri Corneille Agrippa proclaims the equality of the sexes both from a physiological standpoint and in terms of reason and thought, and he concludes with an indictment of laws imposed on women by
