thanks to its wide seat, It also presents a very attractive appearance with its elegant and harmonious curves. This chair, with its delicately refined finishes, embodies the sophistication of Louis XVI-era furniture and will enhance your home.

Jean-Baptiste Delaunay (Died in April 1778) - Cabinetmaker, received his master's certificate on November 13, 1764. Jean-Baptiste Delaunay, who had his workshop on Rue Saint-Martin, left behind Louis XV- and Louis XVI-style chairs characterized by pure, harmonious forms and understated decoration. He is considered one of the finest chair makers of his time. Delaunay's style was exceptionally elegant, and the Louis XV armchairs produced in his workshop could have been signed by Falconet: they share the same purity of lines and harmony of proportions.
