Description

We are selling this collectible firearm. In my opinion, it is a service weapon that was originally a flintlock from the 18th century and was converted to percussion in the 19th century. I haven't been able to determine which model it is. I'm familiar with almost all service models. This one may predate 1763; I'd like to know for sure. It's very long--43 cm. Shipping not included.
