Description

An elegant Caucasian rug of the Kazak type, made entirely by hand and hand-knotted in wool, dating approximately to the mid-20th century, around 1960. The rug features a distinctive geometric design with three large medallions on a red background, embellished with numerous small polychrome decorative motifs. The composition is completed by wide geometric borders in shades of blue, red, ivory, and yellow. The weave exhibits the characteristic sturdy and textured appearance of Caucasian rugs, with a substantial wool pile and colors that create a strong decorative impact. Origin: Caucasus region, Kazak type Date: circa 1960 Material: wool Technique: hand-knotted Dimensions: approximately 200 × 300 cm
