Description

19th-century coffee table, with a curved, kidney-shaped top, in the Louis XV style. The tabletop features a floral marquetry design composed of bouquets, foliage, and scrollwork crafted from various types of wood against a warm-toned veneer background. The shape of the tabletop is accentuated by a bronze mold running along its entire contour. The base, also curved, is adorned with marquetry in the same style and features a drawer. The table rests on four curved legs fitted with bronze finials, including corner spurs and footplates. It is also adorned with a lock plate and bronze side handles. A decorative piece combining a kidney-shaped form, floral marquetry, and bronze ornamentation. Period: 19th century Style: Louis XV Materials: veneered wood, marquetry, and bronze Width: 59 cm Depth:
