Description

A very elegant Delftware lamp on a baluster-shaped base with a long, elongated neck. The earthenware, set against a white background, is gadrooned, and the base is octagonal. It features a delicate decoration of floral and bird motifs, hand-painted in an intense cobalt blue ; a vibrant and luminous color obtained from a synthetic mineral pigment (cobalt aluminate).* The renowned quality of Delftware rests on the fineness of its white tin-glazed glass, which imitates porcelain, the precision of its cobalt-painted decorations, and a unique technical mastery developed since the 17th century.- High-quality, handmade lampshade in very good condition.- Wiring checked and functional.Late 19th/early 20th century period.Height with lampshade: 65 cmHeight without lampshade: 35
