Description

A charming pair of late 19th-century nightstands, particularly elegant thanks to their slightly curved shape and harmonious proportions. Each nightstand features a drawer at the top, followed by a door that opens to reveal interior storage space. The doors are beautifully adorned with a wicker panel, lending the pieces a sense of lightness and charm. They rest on slender, tapered legs that are slightly arched and carved, characteristic of the elegance of the Louis XVI style. The various molded and carved elements delicately highlight their silhouette. Both nightstands feature a very pretty, very light gray patina that is soft and luminous. This deliberately understated and timeless shade allows them to blend easily into a wide range of interiors, from traditional to more contemporary. The interiors,
