

Surgical Kit, 19th Century, England

Description

A significant mahogany surgical case, adorned with reinforcing strips, spandrels, and a brass cartouche. It opens to a two-tiered, compartmentalized interior lined with red velvet, containing a set of steel surgical instruments. Some pieces bear the marks of London manufacturers. A beautiful collector's item that bears witness to the history of medicine and surgery in the 19th century. 19th-century English work.
