Description

Erik HOGLUND - Glass paperweight depicting an ice man, a Swedish design from the 1960s produced by the Boda Glasbruk glassworks (which would later help form Kosta Boda). The forms have a raw, primitive appearance, and a pensive face emerges from the block of ice. The back is flat and could potentially be used as a bookend. Signed on the underside of the piece: "Boda H 1025" Good condition (scratches on the underside of the piece) Erik Höglund (1932-1998): He is one of the most influential figures in 20th-century Swedish glass design. During his years at the Boda Glassworks and thereafter, he challenged long-established design conventions with innovative ideas regarding form, color, and expression. Dimensions: Height: 10.5 cm Width: 8 cm
